

Jeff Zaslow College Columnist Award

The National Society of Newspaper Columnists Education Foundation seeks entries for the 16th annual Jeff Zaslow College Columnist Award.

The NSNC-EF will award scholarships to three outstanding undergraduate newspaper columnists who write for U.S. college or university newspapers.

First prize is $1,000, second is $500 and third prize $250.

The top winner will be the guest of the National Society of Newspaper Columnists at its 2014 conference in Washington, D.C., June 26-29, with transportation, hotel and registration, including meals, provided.

March 15, 2014, is the deadline for entering this year's contest. The contest is open to undergraduates, including seniors, who write bylined general interest, editorial page or op-ed columns in their campus newspapers. Sports columns, movie reviews and other specialized columns are not eligible.

There is no entry fee. An entry comprises three columns. The foundation welcomes multiple entries from campus papers but allows only one entry per columnist. Judges for the contest are professional columnists.

Entry forms & rules are at columnists.com/nsnc-education-foundation

For more information,
email NSNC Education Chair Joel Brinkley joelgbrinkley@yahoo.com